Re: Ex Parte Presentation by T-Mobile USA, Inc. in CC Docket No. 95-116

Dear Ms. Dortch:

Yesterday, Kathleen Ham, Anna Miller and I, on behalf of T-Mobile USA, Inc., met with Daniel Gonzalez, Senior Legal Advisor to Chairman Kevin J. Martin, to discuss the above-referenced proceeding and to distribute the attached documents. Consistent with the positions outlined in the attached written presentations, T-Mobile urged the Commission to adopt rules that would make the intermodal porting process easier for consumers and more efficient for all carriers, whether wireline or wireless.

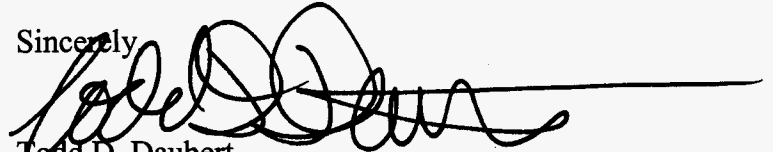

During the meeting, T-Mobile explained that the FCC could make the intermodal porting process much easier for consumers, and thus foster intermodal competition, by adopting the NANC C2/A3 Recommendation and requiring carriers to validate port requests based on two or three numeric validation criteria like wireless carriers do today. T-Mobile clarified that the FCC should not require carriers to amend their Local Service Ordering Guide ("LSOG") or Local Service Request ("LSR") forms and procedures, apart from limiting the fields carriers can examine to validate port requests. T-Mobile also explained that requiring all carriers to validate requests based on two or three standardized numeric validation criteria rather than entire LSOGs or LSRs would make the intermodal portability process much more efficient and less expensive for all carriers, including those that process port requests on a manual basis. Finally, T-Mobile expressed its support for allowing carriers to recover their legitimate local number portability costs.
